

Message from BS Troop 1 Meguro President H. Takane

What is `Grown up to be Independent? What Boy Scouts want to tell you.`

This is a title of promotion video by Scout Association of Japan. You will see our troop members during our volunteer activity, `Red Feather donation Day`.

Recently, we come across many children who has never played with mud, has never seen real fish (not sliced fish), cannot use knives, nor even tie his/her own shoes.

Boy Scouts, through our activities, we learn how to take care of ourselves, challenge difficulties, and help people. I hope this promotion video send messages to many people what Boy Scouts are aiming for.

I am already grown up person but may be far from fully independent! Through this video, both grownups and children think about `What is to be independent` and find value in Boy Scout activities.

Volunteers, often highly regarded by other people, are activities you service voluntary and enjoy participating in such activities as part of your life.
